Geographies of Interconnections

This series investigates how people are connected to places around the world, and how these connections affect places and environments.

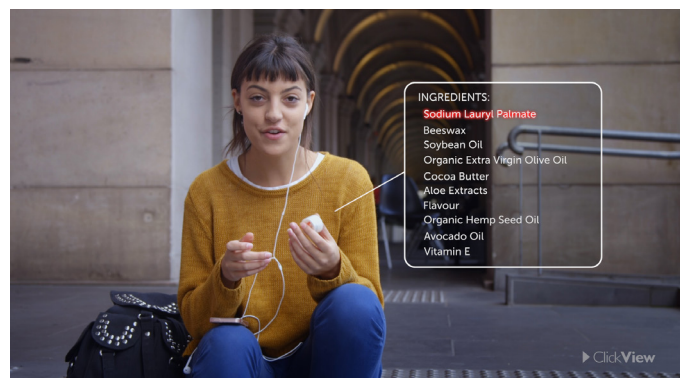

Environmental Impacts of Consumer Products

We often don't realise it, but the decisions we make as consumers – from what products we buy to how we end up disposing of them – often affect other people in other places. In this programme we investigate how the sourcing, manufacturing and disposal of everyday products impact the environment, and in turn people. It also profiles VISY, an international packaging and recycling company that uses sustainable production processes.

Global Connections through Trade

We use foreign-made products every day. Some have components that originate in many different countries. This programme explores how international trading connects us with other places. It looks at the history of Western manufacturing and trade, and the increasing prevalence of cheaper offshore production, as well as the growth of industries such as tourism and travel in response to our connectedness across the globe.

Social Media Me

This three-part series follows three characters' experiences with identity and self-esteem, as they navigate social media and real world relationships.

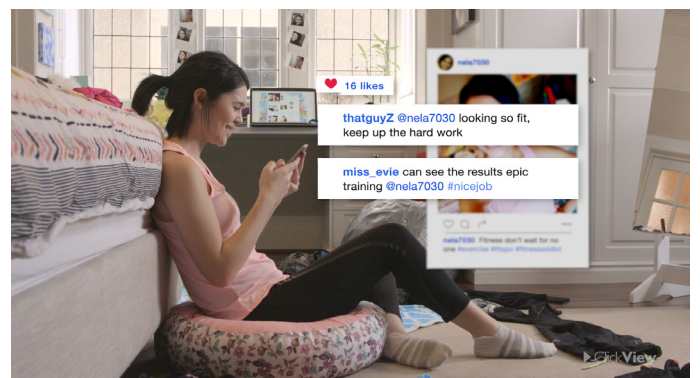

Understanding Self-Esteem

This episode introduces us to characters Jules, Nela and Marcus, who use and respond to social media in different ways. Jules blogs about positive self-esteem and body image. Her regular contributors are youth mental health experts, connecting the storyline with real world advice. Notions of self-esteem and ideas about what positive and negative self-esteem may look like are explored through the experiences of the main characters.

Self-Esteem and Social Media

Social media is often criticised for having a negative impact on self-esteem. But it doesn't have to be that way. This episode looks more closely at how Jules, Nela and Marcus are affected by social media content and popular platforms. The differences between their social media self and their real world self are highlighted, encouraging viewers to think critically about their online interactions and experiences.

Positive Social Media Strategies

How can we manage social media use so that it is positive? How can we tell when social media use is affecting us and our relationships in a negative way? In the conclusion to this three-part series, Jules' final blog post provides practical advice from experts on managing our social media habits and choices. Her thoughtful insights give Nela and Marcus inspiration to make some positive changes.
