Music of the World

This series introduces the characteristic rhythms, instruments and styles of music from different parts of the world. We begin with Africa and India.

Introducing the Music of Africa

African music permeates the many diverse cultures across the continent. The legacy that African musical traditions have passed to contemporary musicians is rich and varied. From the iconic djembe drum to the distinctive a cappella choir vocals, Africa's music embraces many instruments and rhythms. This programme presents a selection of music from the countries of Africa that have impacted movements such as blues, jazz, rock and rap.

Introducing the Music of India

Over thousands of years, music has woven through India's rich culture. Though Indian music has changed and diversified, tradition remains strong. This programme introduces the origins and cultural relevance of music in India. Indian Classical, Folk and Bollywood melodies and rhythms are discussed. Demonstrations of how to play widely used instruments – the bansuri, tanpura, sitar, tabla and kanjira – will be of particular interest to music students.

Stills from our new series

The Most Embarrassing Sex Questions in History

This series of short icebreaker comedy skits answer the types of tricky questions sex education classes are notorious for. Characters set in famous historical periods explore modern day issues about sex, sexuality and puberty.

Is Masturbation Normal?

Even a genius like da Vinci is at a loss for words when he is literally caught with his pants down. By his mum. And his friends. Good thing Mrs D knows a few truths about 'mixing your paints'.

Religious Education

Stills from our new series

Let's Talk About Religion

What is a god? What happens after we die? This two-part series discusses the way in which three of the world's largest religions—Christianity, Islam and Buddhism—interpret the nature of God and the afterlife.

The Afterlife

Ever wondered what happens to you after you die? Do our actions affect what happens to us in the afterlife? This programme presents comprehensive overviews of life after death from Buddhist, Muslim and Christian perspectives. Topics include teachings about following the path to nirvana, paradise and heaven, and the concepts of final judgement and hell.
